SINGAPORE - CAMBRIDGE GENERAL CERTIFICATE OF EDUCATION*

At present, Secondary IV students sit for four different examinations leading to the award of 4 different School Certificates according to their medium of instruction: the School Certificate awarded by Cambridge for the English stream, and the Chinese, Tamil and Malay School Certificates awarded by the Ministry of Education for the other 3 language streams.

It has been decided that a common examination leading to the award of a single certificate for the 4 language streams shall be instituted as from 1971. The Certificate, to be called the Singapore-Cambridge General Certificate of Education, will be issued under the joint auspices of the Singapore Ministry of Education and the Cambridge Syndicate, the former being responsible for subjects examined in the medium of Chinese, Malay and Tamil; the latter responsible for subjects examined in the medium of English. A draft specimen of the proposed Certificate is attached. A uniform system of grading, the results will be adopted by the two examining authorities. The Certificate issued will clearly indicate what subjects have been examined by which authority and in what language medium.

School candidates sitting the examination on their first attempt will be required to offer a minimum of 5 and a maximum of 8 subjects. Private candidates and repeat school candidates may offer one or more subjects. Choice of subjects in the GCE will be much more flexible than in the School Certificate, the only restrictions being those imposed by our own curricula and not those imposed by an external body as in the case of the Cambridge School Certificate Examination. ."

The proposed change over to the new system of examination is dictated by 4 main considerations. First, the fact that certain subjects are now taught in the medium of the second language makes it impracticable to continue with the Cambridge School Certificate Examination, which is essentially a monolingual examination. Secondly, the swing to technical and vocational education increases the number of subjects with a practical element which is inconvenient and expensive for an overseas body to examine. Thirdly, the advantages of the GCE over the School Certificate is widely recognized. Britain discarded the School Certificate in favour of the GCE as far back as 1951. Fourthly, a common Certificate will reflect the parity and unity of the Republic's educational system and bring integration of the 4 language streams a giant step forward.

Syllabuses will not be affected by the change in the examination system, nor will standards be lowered. The grading of results will also remain the same. In fact, the GCE system is already well known to schools and students, the existing examination being in fact a joint examination for the School Certificate and the GCE. The equivalence of a credit in the School Certificate to an "O" level in the GCE is also well established. The two universities, the Public Service Commission, the Polytechnic, the Finance Ministry (Establishment) and secondary school Principals are unanimously in favour of the proposed change-over. Agreement in principle has also been reached with the Cambridge Syndicate for the joint examination and only minor details need further negotiation. As a follow-up, the present HSC examinations will also be replaced by a joint Singapore-Cambridge GCE (Advanced Level) Examination, at a later date, subject to agreement by Cambridge.
